

Quiz on Where and Were

Fill in the blanks with where or were.

The Place _____ I Was Born

A few weeks ago, I decided to return to the little farm _____ I was born to see how things _____. I wanted to see once again the fields _____ our corn grew and _____ my friends and I used to hide when we _____ little. After we _____ finished hiding, we would run into the kitchen and our mother would ask us, “_____ you?” We’d all laugh and answer, “We _____ in the corn fields!”

The neighboring farms _____ we would play with the other kids who _____ usually slightly older than we _____. They _____ also in our class at the school _____ we learned math and science and _____ we all _____ in the same graduation class. Their homes _____ they lived _____ a little nicer than ours _____. However, all of us _____ still friends, and it didn’t matter _____ we lived or _____ we _____ born.

There _____ several tall trees on our farm and _____ the front path ended, there _____ two very tall trees right beside the porch. These huge trees, which _____ oaks, _____ our daddy had built us a nice tree house _____ we could go when we _____ interested only in having fun. In that tree house, _____ I spent many happy hours at play, _____ so many memories of my childhood days which _____ near and dear to my heart.

My trip reminded me of a famous old saying: "Home is the place _____, when you have to go there, they have to take you in." Also, another old saying came to mind:
"Home is _____ the heart is!" How true both of those statements
_____!